Focal Theme

Margaret Mead once rightly said that “We won’t have a society if we destroy the environment” because it is the environment on which we the humans are entirely dependent.

Environment- Always it has been the life giver and the sustainer. The four major components of the environment- the physical, biotic, social and cultural aspect have encompassed us since the inception of life. Creation has struck a balance to create harmony between Nature and Man. But over the years “change” as the only constant force, has resulted in degeneration and degradation of the environment. Unprecedented growth of human population has taken a toll on environment and disturbed the livelihood of millions who depend on nature for their basic necessities. With climate change crisis looming large we are no longer progressing towards a sustainable future but an impending doomsday that will not only affect life but also life system.

The objective of this Conference is to discuss a burning and relevant topic like climate change and its effect on future life. The impact of climate change is varied and manifold and is of utmost importance in present times. By identifying the challenges of climate change, the Conference will help in exhibiting certain avenues to reach a better and sustainable future by creating a greener eco-friendly environment. Finally, it is also a reminder about the need to preserve the environment so as to save the livelihood of millions. The Conference aims to subtly express that “Progress is impossible without change built is the mindset that needs to be changed to preserve life and livelihood.”

Sub Themes

- Climate change-a dynamic concept
- Environmental Ethics and Climate Change
- Changing Global Climate and Resource Perception.
